

No formal training or qualification is required to enroll on Emergency First Aid course.

The severity of many accidents in the workplace can be reduced by the appointment of a qualified nominee who is capable of taking charge if an injury or illness occurs. The course is therefore an ideal introduction to First Aid for door supervision, security guarding or managerial roles.

It is important that everyone should learn at least the basic first aid techniques. You may need to use them at any time at home, at school or work or even while you're travelling. Knowing what to do can make the difference to a person's recovery and you could even save their life.
